Booties for their cutie patooties {Stonz booties review & giveaway}

STONZ®

While summer may have just ended, fall is in full swing, and winter may seem like forever away, it is on it's way in just a few short months. Gone will be the perfect mild days we are having and in it's place will be cold, chilly days that turn noses red and hands into popsicles! I used to like winter a whole lot more when I was a kid. I remember getting REALLY excited when it snowed (I grew up in Utah where there is LOTS of snow!). We would rush outside after a good snowfall and spend hours making snowmen, laying down making snow angels, pulling ice sickles off the house and eating them, building forts of snow, and of course snowball fights! I'm really excited to show my little monkey the wonders of snow this winter. We barely went outside last winter since he was a newborn! While snow forts and snow ball fights may still be a few years away, we do plan to get out more this winter. I recently took up snowshoeing with my husband and so hopefully we will be doing that among other things! So in preparing for bundling up my little peanut, I was looking for some versatile booties to go on his little tootsies! And I found the perfect thing! Stonz Booties!

The most versatile and adorable bootie.

These innovative baby booties are fleece lined wind and water resistant nylon with a soft, rubberized sole, which is great for still developing feet! The roomy fit allows for extended use from fall through spring! The wide opening is designed to fit over bare feet, socks, sleepers, slippers or even some shoes! There are two adjustable toggles that tighten at the ankle and calf that ensure a custom fit so the booties stay on! Nothing worse than loosing a shoe somewhere!! They can also be paired with a Sherpa fleece liner for additional warmth!

I am so excited for us to get out this winter and play in the snow! I'm also looking forward to keeping my little peanut's piggies warm while we are just out and about around town too! Thanks Stonz booties!
